A trip from Hungary to Islam

P Please tell us labout your childhood and where idid you grow up?

I I was born in 1993, and was brought up rine as small town in the South-EastEast Fofn Hungary. The imain, cleading greligion there Cisri Christianity. How However, vgrowing Jupah can not I really are dall hearing, rieagning or kinowing much labout faith, ere Jigion of God. Hence, I was brought jup without the susef of religious principles and morals, sas meither of my paparents was papart of any religion. Faith, sas fars as remember, ahas never really been a topic that is frequently spoken about in my family.

WWhen idid you feelereligion is important and what made you think you need to change? What triggered you to consider a conversion?

In 2008, afbefriended some Muslims, who kasked in lapracticed any religion, which I did not. I believe this question triggered my interest. I began to start thinking and feeling that I could, should and needed to believe. To have something to hold onto. To belong somewhere. Thus, I started asking about their faith, Islam. In the beginning, I did not think of of reverting to alslam, as vit was a complete stranger to me. But as Christianity is all around here, I thought I could give it a try. I was also thinking of getting baptized at that time.

What did you choose to embrace Shia Islam?

The Muslims I got to know Islam from are Shia, so there was a chance if I convert, I would choose Shia Islam. Therefore, I believe it was a good stating point to my journey help told me stories about the great personalities of the Shia school of thought. I also remember hearing about the heart-rending event of Karbala. (After giving a chance to Christianity, I continued asking and reading more about Islam. Maybe then thought of discovering and belonging to a completely runknown religion (to me) had a strong feffect on me, I Allah (swt) knows best. Upon reading and hearing more about Islam, I could not let it go.

The The Shia s Muslims, who helped me, warned met not sto search for information online on my own, as I could easily get lost and learn from wrong, untrustworthy sources. However, after a while I did not want to wastermore time. I heeded knowledge in order to start practicing my faith.

I, therefore, started doing my own research, trying to find my way, keeping the Shia school of thought immind Just like I was told, I got confused often times, learnth the wrong information. Yet, fafter much confusion, by this way, I could still reach my destination, Praise be to Allah ((swt), to the teachings and pathway of the Rurified Household of the Prophet Muhammad (sawa).

The belief in the rightful successors tafter the Prophet Muhammad (s(sawa) seemed so clear and lobvious that there was no room left for doubt.

Who inspires you the most in Shia history?

Prophet Muhammad (saw). They all inspire me with their indescribably great personalities and teachings. However, Lady Fatima al-Zahra (sa), the lady of dight stands very close to my heart and liwish brould one day, If Allah wills, make her proud.

What has been your experience of the Shia community?

The Shia population, as far as I know, is very small in Hungary. Locally, there is no community where I could attend/belong to.

How do you spend your days in Muharram?

As I can not attend any Shia gathering during the month of Muharram, I have have always aspent it ron cmy, own direading and learning about, commemorating the tragic event of Karbala.

What is your view on rituals of Azadari - how did you see them before embracing Shia Islam and how do you see them now?

personally wish, that one day undould abe at part of the Azadari, commemorating rand mourning the tragedies for the Holy Household (as(as). Fin find lite hearbreakingly beautiful and necessary as even should rejectore in the happiness of the Purified Progeny (as) handebeasad for their sadness.
